Ken : Yes! He is so cute! Is this your cat?

Rumiko : Yes. His name is Kotaro. But actually, he ran away from home. I haven't seen him for a week.

Ken : Oh... I'm sorry to hear that. Did you search everywhere?

Rumiko : I did. My family and I have been A for a week. If we can find him, we are going to implant a microchip into his body. 【 あ 】

Ken : A microchip? What's that? I have never heard of that before.

Rumiko : It's a very small device. It is only the size of a grain of rice. Veterinarians can implant it. 【 い 】 From 2022, the Japanese government let people implant microchips into their dogs and cats.

Ken : Really? Is that safe?

Rumiko : If a veterinarian implants it, it is safe.

Ken : That's good. Microchips can (pets / help / when / people / have gone / their) somewhere. 【 う 】 Do you know how many pets have microchips now?

Rumiko : Hmm... I don't know. I heard that there is a website about microchips. Let's check it out!

... 2 minutes later ...

Rumiko : I found the website. Look at this Graph 1.

Ken : Hmm... it shows what percentage of pets have microchips. 30% of cat owners are implanting microchips into their cats. The number of cats with microchips is B than the number of dogs with microchips. 【 え 】 Dog owners are more likely to implant microchips into their pets.

Rumiko : Here is another graph! Graph 2 tells us the C for having microchips in pets. They think that it is convenient when their pets have been lost.

Meow ...

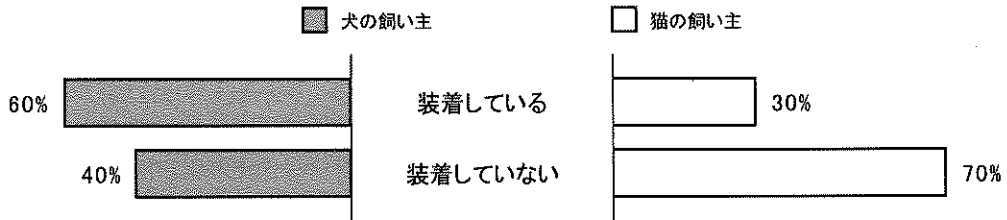

Rumiko : I can hear my cat's voice! He's back!

Ken : Great! You should implant a microchip as soon as possible!

There are many famous women in this world. Do you know Malala Yousefzai? She is a famous activist from Pakistan. She fights for women and girls' education around the world! She is very brave. She is brave because she can stand up in front of danger. Many people were angry at Malala because she fought for girls' rights in Pakistan. They thought that girls should stay at home and take care of their child and should not go to school. But Malala wanted to go to school. She liked to study. She had many dreams. She wanted to be a doctor at that time, so she continued to study.

One day, when Malala was going to school, a gunman got on the bus. He shot Malala with a gun. She was only fourteen years old. ① The man (that / killed / thought / her / he), but she survived! She got better, and continued to fight for girls' rights all over the world! She never stopped her activities. When she was seventeen years old, she won the Nobel Peace Prize. Now she is famous all over the world. She has spoken at the United Nations in front of a lot of people. We can listen to her speech on the Internet. Malala wants everyone in the world to have a quality education and girl or boy, everyone can go to school. We will never forget when Malala said, "One child, one teacher, one book and one pen can change the world." When Malala said ② this, it inspired us. Malala said, "the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are important for the future." Goal 4 : Quality Education, and Goal 5 : Achieve Gender Equality and Empower All Women and Girls, if we can reach these goals it will help so many people around the world. Malala has taught us that young people can change the world.

Malala's story has inspired many young men and women around the world. But she is not finished! She continues to fight for women's education. In many parts of the world, girls still cannot go to school. Malala wants to change ③ that. She is leading a campaign to give all girls at least 12 years of education. And her campaign is having success! In 2015, the government of India agreed to support girls' education. This will make the lives of many girls better. In this way, Malala continues to help girls get education, and shows us that young people can change the world.
